DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brown (U. S. Patent 2,058,407) in view of Pritchard (U. S. Patent 5,669,323).

As to claim 1, Brown discloses as audio equipment as shown in figures 1-4 comprising:

- a housing (element 1 and 2, see figure 1);
- an audio circuitry (3, 6, see figure 1) installed within the housing; and
- a first protective bar (14, column 2, line 14).

Brown does not show the first protected bar flexibly connected to the housing. Pritchard teaches a flexible connection assembly (28, column 4, line 5) as shown in figures 2, 4-5.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a flexible connection assembly as taught by Pritchard to modify the audio equipment of Brown in order to protect the audio equipment against a sudden impact. This would lead itself to a long life for the audio equipment.

As to claim 2, Brown discloses the audio equipment as shown in figures 1-3 further comprising a handle (21, column 2, lines 53-54) that is attached (19, see figure 1) to the first protective bar.

As to claim 3, Brown discloses the audio equipment as shown in figures 1-4 further comprising a connector assembly (28) connecting the first protective bar to the housing.

As to claims 4 and 5, Brown does not disclose a flexible gasket disposed between the first protection bar and the housing. Pritchard shows a flexible gasket (100, column 5, lines 42-43) disclosed in figures 4 and 5.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a flexible connection assembly as taught by Pritchard to modify the audio equipment of Brown in order to protect the audio equipment against a sudden impact. This would lead itself to a long life for the audio equipment.

As to claim 6, Brown discloses as audio equipment as shown in figures 1-4 further comprising a housing a second protective bar (15, column 2, line 21). Brown does not teach the second protective bar flexible connected to the housing. Pritchard teaches a flexible connection assembly (28, column 4, line 5) as shown in figures 2, and 4-5.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a flexible connection assembly as taught by Pritchard to modify the audio equipment of Brown in order to protect the audio equipment against a sudden impact. This would lead itself to a long life for the audio equipment.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 12/06/01 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues:

- (1) Pritchard is not analogous art.
- (2) no motivation or suggestion to combine Brown with Pritchard exists.
- (3) combination of Brown and Pritchard would not have all claimed element.

Examiner disagrees.

Regarding to argument (1), Pritchard teaches a flexible connection assembly (28), which has function to accommodate connection in a wide range of movement without damage, or breakage between a pump 24 and a power supply 26. Therefore, Pritchard's flexible connection assembly 28 is good to modify the flexible connection between two parts; hence, Pritchard is an analogous art.

Regarding to argument (2), applicant recites a connector assembly 30 in page 4 of the specification (disclosed in figure 4), which is flexible connecting to a protective bar and a housing, and also in applicant's previous amendment filed on October 01, 2001 emphasized mention in page 2 that "As mentioned above...when radio 10 is dropped." Applicant being claimed a protective bar (but not flexible) connected to a housing by a flexible connection, which is a flexible connector assembly 30. In combine of argument (1), Brown in view of Pritchard disclose a leg 14 capable of being a protective bar connected to a housing (1, 2) by a flexible connector assembly (28) of Pritchard.

Regarding to argument (3), combination of (1) and (2), Brown in view of Pritchard would teach all of the limitation of claimed invention.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
